

At business doctors we pride ourselves on being client centred and only delivering exactly what the client needs.

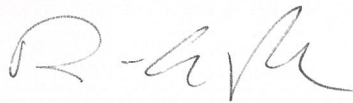

The same can be said about Owen from Code 56.

I knew that I had to do something with my internet security but was unsure as to exactly what. During a meeting with Owen he gave me honest open advice tailored exactly to my requirements because he took the time to ask and find out the detail of what I needed. We went onto discuss three other IT related subjects with Owen even recommending free software rather than taking out a paid subscription to fix a particular problem that I had.

I came home that evening to an E mail that contained all the relevant links to the software and information that I needed, fantastic prompt service.

Owen knows his subject inside out which allows him to explain technical issues in laymans terms and he is passionate about making his clients life easier through the correct application of IT.

I can't recommend Owen and Code 56 highly enough, they are now my IT Guru's.
